

Contents

0. HISTORICAL PRELUDE	1
0.1. Pānini.....	1
0.2. Plato and Aristotle.....	1
0.3. The Stoics.....	2
0.4. Dionysius Thrax.....	3
0.5. Latin grammarians: Varro and Priscian.....	4
0.6. A summary: from Plato to Priscian.....	5
0.7. Further historical developments.....	6
1. INTRODUCTION	9
1.1. Lexical categories: Features versus configurations.....	9
1.2. Lexical categories: The generative background.....	11
1.2.1. Chomsky's (1965) Aspects of the Theory of Syntax	11
1.2.2. Chomsky's (1968/70) Remarks on nominalization	12
1.2.3. Lexicalism.....	14
1.2.4. Consequences and implications of the feature formalisms.....	16
1.2.5. Other proposals in current linguistics: Jackendoff 1977; Déchaine 1993; prototype theory.....	20
1.3. Lexicon versus Syntax.....	24
1.3.1. Regression: Nature versus convention → anomaly versus Analogy → lexicon versus syntax?.....	27
1.3.2. Syntactic categorization.....	28
1.3.2.1. Marantz 1997/2001 and Distributed Morphology.....	29
1.3.2.2. Some objections to categorization in DM.....	34
1.3.2.3. Borer's (2000, in press) exo-skeletal (XS) approach.....	35
1.3.2.4. Some objections to the XS-model.....	39
1.3.2.4.1. Objections to XS-categorization.....	40
1.3.2.4.2. Special meanings as idioms.....	40
1.3.2.4.3. The derivation/inflection dichotomy.....	42
1.3.2.4.4. Overgeneration.....	45
1.4. Two alternative approaches to argument structure.....	46
1.4.1. DM's approach to argument structure.....	47
1.4.2. The exo-skeletal approach to argument structure.....	58
1.4.3. A different conception of argument structure: Theta System.....	60
1.5. The extended proposal.....	67
1.5.1. Relational nouns.....	75
1.5.2. A note on concepts in TS, DM and XS: Conceptual coercion and on the necessity of theta features.....	78
1.6. The proposal in a nutshell.....	79
1.6.1. Contrasting the predictions.....	81
1.7. Structure of the dissertation.....	82
2. DECOMPOSING LEXICAL CATEGORIES IN SAKHA	83
2.1. The inventory of roots and suffixes.....	84
2.1.1. The evolutionary routes of roots.....	85
2.1.1.1. Evidence for bound roots.....	87

Contents

2.1.1.2. Evidence from word coining for the psychological salience of bound roots.....	89
2.1.2. Simplex and complex suffixes.....	91
2.1.2.1. Suffixal promiscuity.....	92
2.1.2.2. Suffixal instability.....	94
2.1.2.3. Not all derivation is suffixation.....	95
2.1.3. Explaining categorial ambiguities of roots in Theta system.....	96
2.2. Against bare roots.....	98
2.2.1. Against XS-categorization.....	99
2.2.2. Against DM-categorization.....	99
2.2.3. Against bare roots in general: Onomatopoeic words in Sakha.....	102
2.2.4. Against bare roots in general: Some notes on parsing.....	103
2.3. Derivation: Lexicon versus syntax.....	104
2.3.1. Untenability of the tenet “All derivation in the syntax”.....	106
2.3.2. Predictions for lexical and syntactic derivation.....	112
2.3.3. Some notes on morphological marking of derivation.....	114
2.4. Deriving nouns in the lexicon and syntax.....	118
2.4.1. Deriving nouns from nouns.....	118
2.4.2. Deriving nouns from adjectives.....	119
2.4.3. Deriving nouns from verbs.....	120
2.5. Deriving adjectives in the lexicon and syntax.....	125
2.5.1. Deriving adjectives from nouns.....	125
2.5.2. Deriving adjectives from adjectives.....	125
2.5.3. Deriving adjectives from verbs.....	126
2.6. Concluding remarks.....	128
3. NOUNS IN SAKHA	131
3.1. Possession.....	131
3.1.1. Introducing possessives.....	132
3.1.1.1. Possession at the nominal level.....	132
3.1.1.2. The lack of genitive case in Sakha and the obligatory presence of the dummy noun in possessor predicates.....	133
3.1.1.3. Clausal possession: Full NP possessor predicates.....	134
3.1.1.4. Clausal possession: -LAAX.....	135
3.1.1.5. There is a nominative possessor.....	137
3.1.1.6. There is a dative possessor.....	137
3.1.2. Analyzing possessives.....	138
3.1.2.1. Analyzing -LAAX.....	139
3.1.2.1.1. Associative -LAAX.....	141
3.1.2.1.2. Temporal -LAAX.....	145
3.1.2.2. Raising analysis of possession.....	146
3.1.2.2.1. Possessives and locatives.....	151
3.1.2.2.2. Capturing the possessor.....	155
3.1.2.3. Inalienable possession.....	160
3.1.2.3.1. Inalienability as a grammatical category.....	164
3.1.2.3.2. Absence of relationality with possessive predicates.....	167

Contents

3.1.2.3.3. Postpositional phrases.....	170
3.1.2.3.4. Q-ish nouns.....	172
3.1.2.4. Adjectival modification and temporary possession.....	175
3.1.2.5. Concluding remarks on possession.....	178
3.2. Nominal compounds: The lexicon/syntax division.....	179
3.2.1. Root compounds.....	180
3.2.2. Possessive compounds.....	181
3.2.3. Dvandva compounds.....	185
3.3. Baker's (2003) criterion of identity.....	189
3.4. Nouns as arguments.....	191
3.4.1. Other proposals for nouns as arguments.....	192
3.4.2. The current proposal: NP-arguments versus DP-arguments.....	195
3.4.2.1. Structural deficiency in Sakha: The missing DP-layer..	195
3.4.2.2. Discourse reference and the DP-domain.....	197
3.5. Concluding remarks.....	198
4. ADJECTIVES IN SAKHA	201
4.1. Predication.....	201
4.1.1. Conjunction.....	202
4.1.2. Agreement.....	204
4.1.2.1. Agreement in finite predication.....	204
4.1.2.2. Agreement in non-finite predication.....	206
4.1.3. Negation.....	207
4.1.4. Structures for adjectival predication without buol 'be' (present tense).....	211
4.1.5. Buol 'be' introducing a generic operator.....	213
4.1.6. Structures for adjectival predication with buol 'be' and for nominal predication (present tense).....	216
4.2. Tense and the three types of predicates.....	218
4.2.1. Overview of tenses in Sakha (in the indicative mood).....	220
4.2.1.1. INFL _{[-TENSE FEATURE]-PART-VP}	220
4.2.1.2. INFL _{[+TENSE FEATURE]-VP}	223
4.2.1.3. INFL-AUX-PART-VP.....	223
4.2.1.4. Alternating forms: INFL-PART-VP or INFL-AUX- PART-VP.....	224
4.2.1.5. Summary 1: Simplex and compound tenses in Sakha...228
4.2.1.6. Summary 2: On the relationship among I, Part, VP and AP.....	229
4.2.2. Deriving tense asymmetry between verbs and adjectives.....	231
4.2.3. Deriving allomorphy.....	234
4.2.4. Matrix bare verbs.....	240
4.2.5. A sample derivation for a nominal predicate in the past and future tenses.....	247
4.2.6. Comparison with Baker 2003.....	248
4.3. Embedded predication and the obligatoriness of buol 'be' with nonfinite nominal predicates.....	252
4.3.1. Non-finite and finite subordination: Verbal predicates.....	253

Contents

4.3.2. Non-finite and finite subordination: Adjectival predicates.....	254
4.3.3. Non-finite and finite subordination: Nominal predicates.....	255
4.3.4. Argumenthood and referentiality of embedded clauses.....	255
4.4. Extractions out of predicates: the nominal/adjectival/verbal asymmetry.....	257
4.4.1. Verb-based relative clauses.....	258
4.4.1.1. Lack of V-to-I movement inside a relative clause.....	260
4.4.1.2. Two differences between Sakha and Turkish RCs.....	261
4.4.1.3. The argument/adjunct asymmetry in extraction.....	262
4.4.2. Adjective-based relative clauses.....	263
4.4.3. Noun-based relative clauses and concluding remarks.....	264
4.5. Attributive modification.....	265
4.5.1. The structure of attributive modification.....	265
4.5.1.1. Kayne's (1994) account.....	266
4.5.1.2. Baker's (2003) account.....	266
4.5.1.3. Thematic account.....	269
4.5.1.3.1. Ruling out verbs as attributive modifiers of nouns.....	272
4.5.2. The N→A conversion.....	272
4.5.3. Intersective/nonintersective ambiguities.....	274
4.5.4. Prenominal/postnominal contrasts.....	276
4.6. Adverbial modification.....	277
4.7. The use of adjectives as arguments.....	279
4.8. Impersonal subjects.....	281
4.9. Concluding remarks.....	283
5. CAUSATIVES AND UNACCUSATIVES	285
5.1. Causative/unaccusative alternations.....	285
5.1.1. Unaccusativity diagnostics in Sakha: Causative alternation and others.....	286
5.1.2. Arguments that the transitive alternate is basic.....	288
5.1.2.1. Irregular causative morphology.....	288
5.1.2.2. Deverbal nouns.....	291
5.1.2.3. Negation scope.....	291
5.1.2.4. Adverbial scope.....	292
5.1.2.5. Levin & Rappaport Hovav's (1995) arguments.....	292
5.2. Verb-based derivation.....	294
5.2.1. Lexical V→N derivation: M-reduction of argument structure.....	294
5.2.1.1. Lexical nominalization and accusative reduction.....	299
5.2.2. V→A derivation.....	301
5.2.2.1. Deriving adjectives from intransitive verbs in the syntax.....	302
5.2.2.2. Deriving adjectives from intransitive verbs in the lexicon.....	303
5.2.2.3. Deriving adjectives from transitive verbs in the lexicon.....	304
5.2.3. A quick summary of N/A-derivation.....	305

Contents

5.3. Causativization.....	305
5.3.1. Introducing Sakha causatives.....	306
5.3.2. Causativization in the Theta System.....	307
5.3.3. Causativization as lexicon-internal operation in Sakha.....	308
5.3.4. High syntactic causatives.....	310
5.4. Causativization in Distributed Morphology.....	312
5.4.1. McGinnis 2000.....	312
5.4.2. Pylkkänen 1999.....	316
5.5. Concluding remarks.....	317
6. DECOMPOSING ACCUSATIVE CASE	319
6.1. Accusative case in Theta system.....	319
6.2. Thematic accusative in Sakha: NP-arguments.....	322
6.3. Unaccusatives: Accusative case reduction and morphological marking.....	323
6.4. Reflexives: Lexical bundling.....	324
6.4.1. Binding Theory.....	325
6.4.2. Arity preservation.....	326
6.4.3. The self-anaphor beje and the disjoint application of Reflexivity conditions.....	327
6.4.3.1. Reflexive semantic predicates which are not syntactic predicates.....	327
6.4.3.2. Reflexive-marked syntactic predicates which are not semantic predicates.....	327
6.4.4. Logophoric beje	328
6.5. Inalienable possession reflexives and benefactives.....	329
6.5.1. The lexical/syntactic opposition in bundling.....	331
6.5.2. The low/high opposition in syntactic bundling.....	332
6.6. Lexical and syntactic passives.....	335
6.6.1. The lexical/syntactic opposition in passivization.....	336
6.7. Reciprocals.....	339
6.7.1. Reciprocals in Sakha.....	341
6.7.2. Reciprocal verbs in Sakha and the lexicon/syntax dichotomy.....	343
6.7.3. Lexical and syntactic reciprocal sets.....	347
6.7.4. s-adjectives.....	349
6.7.5. Comitatives.....	350
6.8. Double accusative in causatives.....	352
6.8.1. The intransitive case pattern: Accusative only.....	353
6.8.2. The transitive case pattern: Upper accusative is not thematic.....	353
6.8.3. Licensing the causee by functional heads: Appl and Acc.....	355
6.8.4. Syntactic causatives and instrumental case.....	355
6.8.5. Merging the causee.....	356
6.8.6. Causation proper and permission.....	357
6.8.7. Double accusative as double object.....	358
6.9. Double accusative and the part-whole relationship.....	359
6.10. Accusative subjects in Sakha.....	361
6.10.1. Extending Moore's (1998) analysis: Copy raising into the matrix clause.....	361

Contents

6.10.2. Interpretive differences between nominative and accusative subjects.....	364
6.10.3. The landing site of the embedded subject.....	365
6.10.4. Types of predicates.....	365
6.10.4.1. Clausal arguments.....	365
6.10.4.2. Clausal adjuncts.....	367
6.10.5. Summary: Discourse accusative versus thematic accusative.....	368
6.11. Syntactic approaches to Case.....	370
7. DENOMINAL VERBS	373
7.1. Recapitulating Hale and Keyser (1993, 1998, 2000).....	374
7.1.1. Extending H&K's proposal to denominal verb formation in Sakha.....	375
7.2. Denominal LAA-verbs.....	380
7.2.1. "Provide with N".....	383
7.2.2. "Apply N (Use N as an instrument)".....	383
7.2.3. "Remove N".....	383
7.2.4. "Make/Hunt/Gather N".....	384
7.2.5. "Look after N".....	384
7.2.6. "Consume N".....	385
7.2.7. "Imitate N; Act/Work like N".....	385
7.2.8. "Go in the direction of N".....	385
7.2.9. "Secrete/discharge N".....	386
7.2.10. "Play N".....	386
7.2.11. Weather verbs.....	387
7.2.12. Summary.....	387
7.3. Denominal verbs, arity operations and accusative case.....	388
7.3.1. Reflexivization: Lexical and syntactic bundling.....	388
7.3.1.1. Denominal verbs ending in -LA-N.....	390
7.3.2. Causativization.....	392
7.3.3. Reciprocal formation.....	392
7.4. Denominal verbs ending in suffixes other than -LAA.....	393
7.4.1. Sporadic suffixes.....	393
7.4.2. Productive suffixes.....	394
7.5. Unergative verbal roots and unergative verbs as $\sqrt{\text{V}}$ -suffix combinations.....	395
8. CONCLUSIONS	399
Appendix 1: Bound roots in Sakha.....	401
Appendix 2: Root words in Sakha.....	409
Appendix 3: Word formation in Sakha.....	413
Appendix 4: Causative/unaccusative alternation in Sakha.....	437
Appendix 5: n-marking in Sakha.....	445
REFERENCES	451
SAMENVATTING IN HET NEDERLANDS	463